

Lance Roberts

on June 20, 2008 at 7:53 am

The Bible's pretty clear that women are not to be in authority over men. The case of Deborah would be similar to if Hillary Clinton won executive office or our own case in Alaska. God will use whoever is in charge to execute his will, but there are many principles it violates when women are in charge. One point would be that now the husband is required to submit to the authority of his wife as the governmental head. This is confusion.

Two of the reasons that Deborah was in charge was a) Israel was under affliction (Is 3:12) and b) passive men not fulfilling their roles, causing women to have to take care of things. These are both problems that we have today.