

Matt Acuña Buxton @mattbuxton · 6h

Replying to @mattbuxton

A bit of back and forth about how the $84,000 figure came about. The commission members said it was Stevens. He says he had drafted such legislation and discussed it with the administration at one point, but says it wasn't a direct request.

1

1

241

Matt Acuña Buxton @mattbuxton · 6h

On the potential for a veto override vote, Senate President Stevens says he's not sure if they'll meet yet.

Asked for her personal opinion, Stevens says he doesn't think the veto should be overridden. He says it's a sensible raise.

1

1

1

892

Matt Acuña Buxton @mattbuxton · 6h

Stevens says he's near retirement and not going to benefit much from this, but it's important for the younger legislators.

"It's only fair that people be paid at a fair salary."

2

1

297

Matt Acuña Buxton @mattbuxton · 6h

Sen. Hoffman also supports keeping the governor's veto. He says the clock has restarted anyway and if they really want to override it, then they can put forward a new rejection bill.

1

1

230

Matt Acuña Buxton @mattbuxton · 6h

Sen. Stedman also supports keeping the veto in place. He says the process may have been messy, but it was also messy having a non-functioning compensation commission for the last decade.

1

2

337

Matt Acuña Buxton @mattbuxton · 6h

Sen. Stevens says any legislator who doesn't support the raises can ask the legislative affairs agency to reduce their pay.

1

2

1

2,376

